Thomas Cooney, twenty-eight, 360 West 119th Street, and John Zinber, twenty-eight, 310 Second Avenue, were held by Magistrate Earl Smith, in the Yorkville Court, in 15,000 ball each for General Sesstons, charged with the theft of the car. Fetzka went into a lunchroom, and, after eating coffee and rolls, came to the street again and found his cab missing. While he was reporting his loss to the police at the East Thirty-fifth street station Patrolman Soffers and Detective Levine arrived, with Cooney and Zimber, who had driven Petzka's cab into a truck and wrecked it. In the collision Joseph Brogan, 239 East 101st Street, who was driving the truck, suffered injuries which necessitated his removal to Bellevuc.

Cooney and Zimber admitted they had taken the cab, the police say. The report of the case quotes then as hade.

what causes building construction enterprises to be so unseasonably active the current Dow Service Daily@Building Reports gives the following explanations:

Building material price and labor wags stability now and in immediate prospect. Better building credits in the trades, resulting from more genuine competition and less market manipulation. A softening process in the bond market, probably influenced by the demostic and foreign political situations, thereby making mortgages a better form of investment for the moment.
